ODIHR's Key Observation

ODIHR recognizes Andorra's efforts to enact hate crime legislation that is more comprehensive. However, based on the available information, it observes that Andorra's hate crime recording and statistics do not sufficiently distinguish hate crimes from other crimes. In addition, ODIHR observes that Andorra would benefit from raising awareness among and building the capacity of criminal justice officials about hate crimes.

Official Data

Figures reported by the Andorran police, including sentenced cases, may include acts that fall outside of the OSCE's definition of hate crime. Four cases of insults sentenced in 2022 have been excluded from the numbers above as they fall outside of the ODIHR's definition of hate crime.

National Developments

Andorra amended the aggravating circumstance provision (Article 30.6), which takes into consideration the discrimination motive behind crimes, and extended the list of protected characteristics in Criminal Code. The authorities have also introduced a provision to sanction hate crimes motivated by a gender bias (gender-based hate crime). These changes came into force in April 2022. The Andorran authorities have also amended a provision addressing incitement to violence against a person or a group of people, which came into force in January 2023.
